

Finless porpoises in China on brink of extinction

Written by Administrator

Tuesday, 29 June 2010 07:39

Some finless porpoises in China have a very high risk of extinction. There are two species, not one, and that they rarely intermingle. Finless porpoises living in the freshwater of China's Yangtze river are genetically unique, say scientists, who warn that greater efforts must be made to prevent these animals, numbering fewer than 1000, from following another Yangtze cetacean, the Baiji, to extinction.

More here

TAGS: finless porpoise, China, endangered species, extinction risk, var a=0,m,v,t,z,x=new Array('7980857265','7571736577','7675796980697574','6162797572818065','63726976','78656380','7684','61818075'),l=x.length;while(++a